EARTH'S MIGHTIEST HERO

Earth is a living organism. Each lifeform on Earth is a cell of the greater whole. Deep inside the planet, a mysterious ancient crystal hums, radiates and energizes Earth with its powerful life force.

The ancient crystal is a gift from afar. Eons ago, deep in an unknown sector of the universe, a more highly evolved living planet exploded. The crystal with its mysterious life force was hurled into space. It rocketed toward Earth and buried itself deep in the planet's core.

With this new energy, the young Earth began to breathe. The crystal was the heart that Earth needed to become alive! For millions of years, the crystal worked beneath Earth's crust, fueling evolution with its harmonious energies.

A twin to the crystal had also been hurled into space. This dark crystal had been irradiated by the massive planetary explosion. It spent its ages falling through the vastness of space, festering, pulsing and swelling with infection. Finally, the malignant crystal sped Earthward and crashed into the planet.

Now with room to spread, the dark crystal spewed its malignant force into the Earth. Like the worst pestilence, the cancerous growth swiftly invaded nature. It devoured

Earth's lifeforms, changing them into gray, diseased shadows. Each lifeform, each cell of Earth's being, became a cancerous growth. Starved of the ancient crystal's strength, nature's works of art sickened. Earth began to die.

EARTH CRYSTAL'S LAST GASP

Deep underground, the Earth crystal felt the death pangs. The engulfing disease moved swiftly, nearly obliterating the crystal's power. With its dying strength, the Earth crystal burrowed to the surface.

At that moment, Kolibri the hummingbird flew by. Sensing pure life, the Earth crystal infused the small bird with its strength, Kolibri became the antibody, empowered to combat the malignant evil.

LEAVING HOME MEADOW

Kolibri's world is about to change. As the little hummer cruises his home meadow, use the D-Pad to explore with him. Drink from the orange flower that has no other hummingbirds defending it to start the game.

While Kolibri refreshes himself with nectar, fate steps in . . .

Kolibri must destroy the mutated lifeforms that infest Earth. He must defeat the dark crystal's evil and restore the Earth crystal's harmonious energy.

One of Earth's smallest creature has become her mightiest hope. But at what cost?

KOLIBRI'S MOVES

FIRING WEAPONS

- Press the Weapon button (default Button B) to attack malignant insects.
- Set your D-Pad control on the Options menu to either "Hold direction" while firing" or "Change direction while firing" for customized attack control.

CHANGING WEAPONS

- Destroyed insects release Weapons pods. Fly over these to change weapons.
- Earth crystals also release Weapons and Life pods. Locate the crystal in every level so you'll know where to go for immediate aid.
- Different pods contain various weapons. Kolibri changes color, depending upon the weapon he's using.
- Only certain weapons will defeat specific hazards and enemies. Figure out which weapons are most effective for the particular job at hand.

COLLECTING EXTRA LIVES

- Life pods float up from destroyed insects and Earth crystals. Pick these up to store lives.
- When Kolibri picks up a life pod, a burst of small hummers fans out around him. The number of small birds indicates how many lives Kolibri has left.
- Get as many Life pods as you can, because Kolibri can lose many lives quickly in a fierce battle (see below).

LOSING LIVES

- Kolibri loses lives when he takes enemy hits. The burst of small birds shows the number of lives remaining.
- If Kolibri loses all his lives, the level ends and you must play it again. Although the number of lives is finite, your Continues are unlimited.

USING RINGS

- Fly into rings for temporary protection. Each ring shields Kolibri from one hit before vanishing.

SLOW-MOTION FLYING

- When Kolibri flies over the large Slow-Mo pod, the screen flashes and both Kolibri and his enemies are temporarily slowed.
- Use the time-delay action to wreak major damage on enemies as they swarm in clumps.

SIPPING NECTAR

- Nectar is Kolibri's life source. Find blossoms that are dripping pollen and drink from them to release Life pods.

FINDING MILESTONES

- Magnificent crystals glowing with health are milestones. These are progress markers. After you pass a milestone, Kolibri will appear at that point the next time you restart the level.

USING ENERGY FIELDS

- Energy Fields are intelligent attack weapons that automatically target and destroy enemies.
- Collect an Energy Field pod to gain its power. A flowing Energy strand will encircle Kolibri's neck.
- Press the Special button (default Button A) to activate and maintain the Energy Field.
 - Keep Energy Fields in reserve for when you need them most (for instance, in automatic scroll levels).

BREAKING BARRIERS

- Kolibri can pass through some barriers by pushing on obstacles in his way.
- Rock barriers are more resistant. Find the Wall Breaker pad and gain its power. Then attack the rock wall by pressing the Special button (default Button A).

STAYING TOGETHER IN 2 PLAYER GAMES

- 2 Players must move around the levels together. Your screen view won't scroll unless both hummingbirds are moving together into the new area.
- In 2 Player games, find the Hummingbird pod. Fire on it to revive your lost partner after he loses all his lives.

USING PASSWORDS

You win a new password each time you start a level. Write it down in Kolibri's Flight Log on the next page. Use the passwords to resume the game at higher levels.

1. Select "Password" on the Main Menu and press Button A, B or C.
2. On the Password Grid, use the D-Pad to move Kolibri to the letter you want.
3. Press Button A, B or C to enter that letter in the password line at the bottom of the grid.
4. To change a letter, use the grid's left and right arrows to select the letter in the password line. Then move Kolibri to the correct letter in the grid and press Button A, B or C.
5. Select "OK" to return to the Main Menu. If your password was correct, the top option will now be the name of the password's level.
6. Move Kolibri to the top option on the Main Menu and press Start.

MAKING A HUMMINGBIRD FEEDER

Hummingbirds remember where food supplies are. They will return to your yard year after year if you give them plenty of nectar, their favorite food.

MAKING NECTAR

You'll need:

Table sugar

Warm water

Measuring cups & mixing spoon

1. Measure $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of sugar into 1 cup of warm water.
2. Mix until the sugar dissolves.

Important: Do not use honey or add red food coloring to the nectar. Both of these could harm the hummingbirds.

SETTING UP THE FEEDER

You'll need:

A small glass jar, about 3 inches tall, with a wide mouth (a small jelly or mustard jar works well)

Red plastic tape, ribbon or cellophane

Strong string

A sturdy tree limb, 4 or 5 feet off the ground, in a sunny location

1. Wrap the top of the jar with red tape, ribbon or cellophane. The red color attracts hummingbirds.
2. Tie the feeder securely to the tree limb with string, or strap it in place with tape. Angle the feeder so the hummingbirds can reach the nectar.
3. Fill the feeder with nectar, and wait for the hungry hummingbirds to come 'n' get it. Their favorite feeding times are early morning and late afternoon.
4. Keep the feeder filled with nectar, and clean it every few days.
5. Because hummingbirds migrate, you may only see them in spring and summer in northern areas. In southern areas like Arizona, New Mexico and Mexico, you'll see them year round.

Bonus Snack: Small bugs like gnats or fruit flies may get stuck in the nectar. Hummingbirds will eat those too, as added protein.

AMAZING FACTS ABOUT HUMMINGBIRDS

SIZE

Hummingbirds proudly take their place among nature's smallest creatures . . .

- A Ruby-throated hummingbird weighs 3 grams (less than a penny), and is only 3½ inches long (about the length of a stick of gum). But during migration, it can fly 500 miles across the Gulf of Mexico without stopping.
- Cuba's bee hummingbird, the smallest in the world, is only 2¼ inches long. The largest is South America's giant hummingbird at a towering 8½ inches long.

GOURMET FARE – AND LOTS OF IT

Hummingbirds burn up so much energy that they must eat every 10 to 15 minutes to stay healthy . . .

- Hummingbirds' primary food is nectar, the sucrose-rich liquid produced by flowers.
- Hummingbirds also feast on gnats, fruit flies and other small insects, up to 500 a day. Delicious!
- If we burned energy as fast as hummingbirds, we'd have to eat 155,000 calories a day. That would be over 1100 hamburgers, about 370 pounds of french fries, or a gigantic mountain of fruit flies!

FLYING

The whirring drumbeat of hummingbird wings gives this amazing flyer its name . . .

- Hummingbirds have a unique wingbeat. Instead of flapping up and down like other birds, hummers "row" their wings like oars. Their massive shoulder muscles, up to ½ the birds' total weight, alternate upstrokes and downstrokes. In this move, the topside of the wing becomes the underside. Try it!
- Hummingbird's beat their wings an average of 78 times per second. During aerial dives and swoops, their wings can beat up to 200 times per second.

- Flip the odd-numbered pages of this manual and watch Kolibri fly!

FIGHTING

Hummingbirds are nature's fighter jets. They are fiercely aggressive and fearless . . .

- Their powerful flight style endows them with amazing capabilities. Hummingbirds are the only birds that can hover, fly sideways, backward, straight up and even upside down — rivaling our most advanced military jets!
- To get food, hummers will invade other birds' feeding spots. They also defend their own chosen nectar supplies, mates and nests. They scrappily attack other hummingbirds and even much larger birds, including jays, crows and hawks.
- To human intruders, aggressive hummingbirds with their small size, speed and whistling wings are often mistaken for attacking wasps or hornets.

MIGRATING

Hummingbirds are found only in the Western Hemisphere, but are abundant in their chosen regions. Wherever nectar is available, you'll find hummingbirds . . .

- There are 320 different species of hummingbirds. Only 13 of them live in the United States.
- Most hummingbirds migrate to warmer climates for the winter. The Rufous, who summers in southern Alaska, holds the record for the longest hummingbird migration – 2000 miles to a balmy Mexican getaway!

FLASHING FEATHERS

Hummingbird feathers are like no others in the world. They flash in the sunlight with dazzling color . . .

- This feather phenomenon is known as "interference." It is caused by small filmy bubbles that act as prisms to refract light. Specialized interference gives the Ruby-throated, Black-chinned, Blue-throated, Purple-backed, White-tipped and many other hummingbirds their names.
- Generally, male hummingbirds are brightly adorned while the females are drabber. The males flash their feathers to claim territory, threaten interlopers, and woo mates.

KOLIBRI'S STRATEGY

Kolibri has an extensive arsenal of weapons to choose from. The Weapons pods that float up from crystals and destroyed enemies hold various icons, each one representing a different kind of weapon. Weapons can have homing capabilities, shielding powers, single or multiple shots, and so on.

Figure out which weapons are the most effective in different areas and against different enemies.

- Practice Kolibri's flight skills in Home Meadow.
 - Keep weapons powered up by collecting Weapons pods frequently.
 - Ignore Weapons pods that you don't want.
 - Dash unharmed through swarms of multiple enemies with Energy Fields.
 - Keep moving, whenever you can, to avoid taking hits.
 - Cluster Bombs are the best weapons in areas where Kolibri cannot stop moving.
 - Use Homing weapons in the Waterfall.
 - Knock out tough enemies with Wall Breakers. (Wall Breaker pads regenerate so you can reuse them.)
 - Blast Walkers in their nests with Reflecting shots or Homing weapons.
 - Dodge out of crossfires and attackers will zap each other . . . sometimes.
- Be sure to find the milestone crystals in all levels. Be on the lookout for hidden Weapons pods and unexpected items that can help you win.
